The Forest Remains
"After almost 500 years, the American forest is still three-fourths as large as it was when Columbus landed." That is the eye-catching title of an advertisement published by the American Forest Institute. The statement is worth pondering. Americans who have visited lands around the Mediterranean have been impressed by their barrenness. A Spanish official told an international gathering that his country, almost treeless today, once was so heavily forested that a monkey could have traveled from the Pyrenees to Portugal without touching the ground.

Cutting for timber and firewood razed primeval forests in the cradle of Western civilization. Americans have been luckier and more prudent.

"After supplying so much of the material and the land to build America's houses and cities and highways, after meeting our constantly growing demands for paper products, our forest is still 761 million acres big," says the forest institute. "To supplement natural planting, we're planting trees ourselves: more than a million and a half acres of forest a year - and more than one tree for every tree we use."

The record is commendable. Americans should be proud of it. -Miami (Fla.) Herald

Resource Investigation

Few nations of the world today enjoy self-sufficiency in natural resources. As populations increase and industrial demand expands, the interdependency upon others to supply basic resources also grows.

The U.S. National Commission on Materials Policy finds the United States caught up in the gap between needs and resources and warns measures will be necessary in coming decades to reverse the trend. Formed in 1971 with the mission of recommending a national materials policy to Congress and the President by June, 1973, the commission has issued an interim report. The report makes clear the growing dependency of the United States upon other nations for natural resources will prove harmful to the nation.

The only practical solution the panel found was to gradually convert the economy to resources which are plentiful. "The alternative," it said, "is progressive deterioration in the mineral position of the United States, with all that implies." -Shreveport (La.) Journal

Amtrak service to begin in December

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Passenger train service through Little Rock and Texarkana is expected to begin about Christmas day, an Amtrak official said Friday.

James Bryant, Amtrak public information director, told the Texarkana Gazette that the service from St. Louis, through Arkansas, to Dallas, Austin and Mexico, should begin late in December.

He said the route may be extended to Chicago.

President Nixon has signed a bill providing $9.1 million for expansion and improvement of the Amtrak system, including $4.1 million designated for the St. Louis-Mexico route.

Bryant said Amtrak has not received word on when the money will be available from the Department of Transportation.

Considerable work to improve stations will be necessary, Bryant added.

Weather creates indoor art form

A recent chilly fall morning, causing condensation on window panes, created a new adventure in art for this young lady, who discovered that figures could be made by "finger-painting" on the windows. Above, she stretches to reach an untouched place on her "canvas," while below, she admires her handiwork.

Hijackers seize plane, demand $10 million

TORONTO (AP) — Three hijackers demanding millions of dollars in ransom and 10 parachutes commandeered a Southern Airways jetliner over Alabama and ordered it on an all night flight to Canada, and police here said $7 million was being delivered to the plane.

The plane carried 26 passengers and four crew members. It was hijacked Friday night after takeoff from Birmingham and stopped for fuel at Jackson, Miss., and Cleveland, Ohio before landing in Toronto.

Two other Southern Airways planes—including one which reportedly carried the ransom and another with a new crew—also were flown to Toronto.

FBI agents and airlines officials were also reported to have landed early today in Toronto.

Newsmen at the airport were confined to the main terminal building, far from the two-engine DC9, parked on a darkened runway.

The hijackers reportedly demanded $10 million. This was believed the largest ransom demand ever made. Palestinian guerrillas received the equivalent of $5 million from the West German government after they hijacked a Lufthansa jet in February.

The hijackers' demand for parachutes reportedly puzzled airline officials who said the pirates would "be dead when they went out of the door because of the position of the door to the engines."

The hijacked DC9 has rear-mounted engines. Other hijackers have jumped from Boeing 727s, which airline officials have said is probably the only airliner from which persons can jump safely.

The hijackers took over the aircraft at 8:22 p.m. EST, shortly after it left Birmingham, Ala., for Montgomery, the Federal Aviation Administration in Washington reported.

The FAA said the hijackers first ordered the plane back to Birmingham, then changed their minds and diverted it to Jackson, Miss. to refuel.

From Jackson the plane flew north to Detroit, but after more than an hour over that city, the hijackers ordered the plane on to Cleveland.

An FBI spokesman said the hijackers' demands were not met during the stop at Cleveland's Hopkins Airport.

An airline official in Cleveland said the hijackers demanded "food, fuel, $10-million and No-Dox," a tablet stimulant. He said they got nothing but fuel.

There was no word on whether any ransom was paid when the DC9 landed at Cleveland Hopkins Airport, but airport security officials said 10 parachutes were placed aboard the plane.

The officials said no one left the plane, which carried 26 passengers and a crew of four.

While the plane was flying toward Toronto, the official said one of the hijackers radioed: "Look, we don't want any stall bull—like we had in Cleveland. This is going to be the last chance. If we don't get what we want... we're going to bomb Oak Ridge."

He did not elaborate.

The official said a hastily trained FBI man, dressed only in his underwear against the bitter cold, fueled the plane in Cleveland.

Give the man credit!

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — When Walter Cavanagh asks a girl up to his bachelor's pad, instead of etchings she's likely to see what he claims is the world's largest collection of credit cards.

"I've got 204 and more arrive every day," Cavanagh said Thursday.

He said he is listed in the 1972 Guinness Book of Records and his collection soon will be displayed at Ripley's Believe It or Not Museum in nearby San Francisco.

"It's a great hobby. Just sit down in front of the television at night when you're not doing anything and type out applications," he said. "And presto! Cards begin arriving in the mail."

Cavanagh, a 29-year-old pharmacist, said his hobby began as a bet with a friend, who managed to collect 114.

"My original conception was to get about 10 or 12," Cavanagh said.

Cavanagh said most of his cards are just for show. He said he uses only a few for purchases and has never paid a cent in interest on any of them.

He said some of his credit card applications have been questioned. For example, he said, an East Coast oil firm could not understand why he wanted their charge card when their nearest service station was 2,000 miles away.

"I wrote them and explained

I was a collector and they sent me one," said Cavanagh. But he said other companies have complained that he never uses his credit.

"We don't issue cards to collectors," one clothing chain told him.

Most of his cards are pinned to a wall in his home, "the most accredited wall in the world."

Cavanagh says he isn't worried about the theft of his cards.

"My insurance takes care of everything and it costs me about $5 a year," he said.

Ironically for the self-described "credit card king," the drug store where he works doesn't accept a charge of any kind.

Skull believed to come from oldest man

WASHINGTON (AP) — The discovery of a fragmented skull, believed the oldest complete skull of early man, could upset the current theory of modern man's evolution, a Kenyan scientist said today.

Researcher Richard Leakey said the skull is 2.5 million years old and is "almost certainly the oldest complete skull of early man." He estimated it is 1.5 million years older than bones previously accepted as the earliest evidence of man.

Leakey said the skull fragments, along with human leg bones from two other individuals of similar antiquity, were found protruding from a stony hillside on a wind-swept, scrub-covered desert east of Lake Rudolf in Kenya.

The largely unexplored region is 500 miles north of Olduvai Gorge, Tanzania, where the finds of Leakey's parents, Dr. Mary Leakey and the late Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey, "revolutionized the study of prehistoric man," according to the National Geographic Society.

Leakey, administrative director of the National Museums of Kenya, announced the discovery of the skull and leg bones in reports prepared for the society.

His 'needs' are few

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Folks who have been dropping spare change into the tin cup of blind street singer N. L. Williams are doing double takes over the sight of his gleaming new guitar.

Williams, 47, has been a street corner fixture in Tallahassee since 1963, singing gospel songs in his guttural baritone and strumming a battered old guitar patched around the edges with tape.

He lives on $91 a month in state aid to the blind and the $5 or so he makes a day from his sidewalk serenades.

A news story about Williams, who said he's "been making it fine" and wished only for a radio and a new guitar, brought quick results.

Ralph S. Senev, a Buftalo,

Wyo., drug store operator, mailed a pocket-sized transistor radio and Mrs. Paul S. Stephan of Sandusky, Ohio, sent a $100 check to buy the new guitar.

Dallas pastor William Milles sent $10, Owen Blankenship of Greenville, Tex., forwarded $5 and $3 arrived in a letter from somewhere in Texas addressed with a picture of the street singer captioned "N. L. Williams on a Tallahassee street corner."

"Well, dreams will come true," Williams said Thursday. "You know, all you've got to do is believe in God."

He called his unseen friends "very wonderful," adding "most of all I thank God. If it hadn't been for Him I never would have had it."

"George, are you all right?" My wife screamed in my ear about 3:30 a.m. Monday. "Wassmadder," I managed to mumble as I reached for the double-barrel.

"You were screaming about some monster," she said, matter-of-factly, and "as usual, asked me to get off you." I denied dreaming about some monster and vehemently denied asking her to come to my aid. "I don't remember anything about any monster," I cried in exasperation. "What kind of a monster did I say it was?"

"You were sweating all over and kept mumbling about the asphalt monster that would pave you under."

Asphalt monster? Just because I live on South Main St., which at the moment has a minimum of mud is certainly no excuse for dreaming about an asphalt monster, I thought to myself.

I denied it again, this time sleepily, and told her to cover her head and shut up.

An hour later. "Wake up, George, you're doing it again."

This time she was right. I definitely remembered having a dream, but it wasn't about an asphalt monster, it was about a fire plug disguised as an organ grinder that was stalking me with intent to drown me, before I finished my strawberry shortcake. I confessed my part in the dream scheme, and my wife fixed me with a look similar to the one my first grade teacher gave me the day I wet my pants during the stand up-sit down fire drill.

"I can't control my dreams," I offered as a defense. And I further offered several psychology journal articles I claimed to have read as evidence.

She wasn't having any.

"Certainly you can control what you dream," she said smugly. "You're just a weird person, therefore you dream weird things."

I hate to admit my wife is ever right, but unfortunately she hit the thumb on the nail. Not that I'm a weird person, but I do dream weird dreams.

I have this recurring dream where I'm being chased by this huge, burly gray wolf. Snarling and yelping and nipping at my heels, the ding-blasted wolf chases me all over the place, through town, into the country, back to town, into a theater showing a Lon Chaney werewolf movie (always) and eventually, I seek refuge in a purple paper bag. The wolf sticks his head in the entrance to the sack... and at that moment I always wake up.

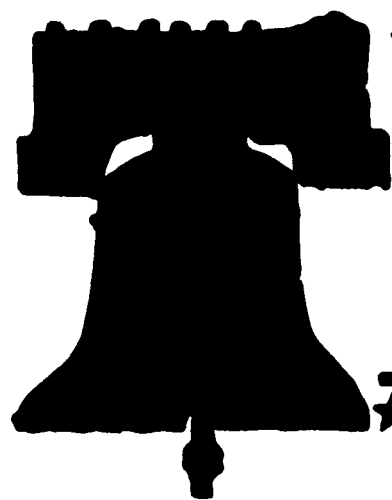

I also dream about a scraggly-haired woman who thinks I would make a fine soup and about a banty-legged pony that wants to adopt me. Then there's the dream I have concerning my critical role in the "international plan of things, (as this one gray-beard in the dream reminds me). In this particular dream, I am always wearing chartrous clam-diggers and eating a banana poppicle.

Another of my favorites is where I'm a teen-age singing idol, standing on stage in a sequined outfit doing a pop version of "Oh Sweet Mama Kindly Turn Your Demper Down."

My wife is familiar with all of these dreams, having discussed them with me at length on several occasions. But I refuse to think of them as having anything to do with my basic make-up, my basic personality.

We discussed all possible reasons for my dreams for about an hour before we both went back to sleep.

And then I, distinctly remember dreaming about donning my purple-and-black grape suit and going out to do battle with the giant corn flakes.

us Liberty at the same time"

Helen Help Us!

by Helen Bottel

RAP: Someone asked, "Can male and female ever remain 'just friends'?" Sue said it was rough because one or the other usually ended up wanting more. You said it was easier as people grow older.

Well, in my case, Sue is right, and I hope you're right, Helen, about "easier when older," unless somehow I can convince my friend that I'm not her good buddy-brother.

We have been best friends for over a year. Whenever we meet, we ask each other, "How's your love life?" She went steady with a guy for five months and she talked more to me than she did to him. I've had other girls but none I could be as comfortable with.

It suddenly came to me—I LOVE her and not like a sister! However, we talked about it and she said she could never make out with me because I know too much about her. It would be "sort of indecent," falling for your "brother."

Is there any hope? —MIKE

MIKE: Maybe there's hope, but you can't force love to happen. If you stopped seeing this girl for a while—made her really miss you—perhaps she might stop thinking of you as her brother.

But (I hate being so negative, Mike)—don't count on it. —SUE

DEAR MIKE: I'm not quite so pessimistic, but then I speak as an older person who has seen many long-time friendships drift gradually into love. (Trouble is, young people demand much more of romance than a happy, comfortable "drift.")

It might help if you'd knock off the "understanding listener" thing and ask this girl out on real dates—show her the special interest not labeled "brotherly love." But don't come on too strong at first. Outgrowing sisterhood takes a while. —HELEN

HELEN AND SUE:

Re: male-female friendships: Friendship, in its own way, is even closer than romance. The two are born and flourish in different ways for different reasons. Having been a lover no more qualifies one to be a friend than having been a friend qualifies one to be a lover.

Hence, to the final question, "Can we still be friends after the break-up?" the answer is, "We were never friends—we were lovers." —MONTCLAIR READER

RAP: Maybe a man and girl can be "just friends" if they've never been anything more to each other, but it's asking too much when a girl (like the one who signed herself "Wants to be a Pal, Not a Lover") breaks off a hot relationship and expects to remain real good buddies.

I tried that route, and was left lonely, miserable and depressed, because friendship with the girl I still thought I loved cut me off from new experiences. I was "old faithful," helping her out of jams, falling for the line, "We got along so well, its dumb not to continue our beautiful friendship."

Believe me, the immediate hurt of total separation may be worse for a while, but it can't compare to the long range hurt when one is truly involved (emotionally but not openly admitted, perhaps even to himself), and there's no hope.

I speak as a man who is now the happiest married guy on earth. I finally cut loose, and two years ago I found the perfect woman—my wife! —BEEN THERE

DEAR RAP: Darn right a boy and girl can be good friends and nothing more. I'm 16, my male friend is 21. I can talk to him better than to anyone else. A chick needs a guy who understands but doesn't demand. We tell each other our problems and we goof on each other and we just help by being there. He introduces me to his friends as "my little sister," and I call him Brother. And there's no thought of sex. Many may not believe it, but we like it this way. —LITTLE SIS

RAP: I have kept almost all my ex-boyfriends as just good friends. We kid around and yak together and seem almost closer now than before—because we aren't TRYING. And guess what? I'm now engaged to my "ex-boyfriend turned friend turned love-of-my life!" We finally got to know each other. —HAPPY

(GOT A PROBLEM?) Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel—or both, in care of this newspaper, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

"Let me have silence, and I will speak, and let me come on me what may. I will take my flesh in my teeth, and put my life in my hand." —Job 13:13, 14.

Sheets do double glamor duty

By JOANNE SCHREIBER

Sheets are getting prettier every day. Formerly the plain-Janes of the linen closet, they are now receiving the loving attention of top designers and blossoming into the glamor leagues.

The fact is, they are too pretty now to hide under blankets and bedspreads. Consequently, sheets are getting out of bed and showing off new personalities in all sorts of guises. And well-behaved stars they are, too, with crisp no-iron finishes which defy muggy-weather droopiness, and keep their crisp through countless washer-and-dryer expeditions.

The pretty new sheets work up beautifully for slipcovers and curtains, as well as for bedspreads. The room setting shown today is done in Burlington's "Ebb Tide" design by the talented Vera. Plain white sheets add contrast for dust ruffle, stool cover and throw pillows.

Even though the glamor sheets are more expensive than plain ones, the width of the goods makes them a good budget buys in by-the-yard terms. Draperies can be made of single sheets with no seaming; the sheet is wide enough for a coverlet; the valances require no piecing; even the slipcovers are easier because of the width of the goods. Naturally, single white sheets may be used as drapery linings to preserve the easy-livin' no-iron quality.

New sheets are available in all sorts of motifs, from beguiling children's prints to sophisticated geometrics to campy comics to gentle florals. All have coordinated solids to use as accents, trims and linings; many have matching towels for texture contrast.

Best of all, sheets are wonderfully easy to sew. The close-woven fabric won't ravel or shift, and seam-puckering is practically impossible. If you haven't tried decorating with sheets, make this your summer for a new and rewarding sewing experience.

STITCHIN' TIPS

One of the problems bugging beginners (and old hands, too) is whether or not to preshrink materials. It's such a temptation to jump right in and cut out that crisp, new fabric—but you do run the danger of having it draw up on you after washing, and even shrink completely out of fit!

In general, you should be sure everything is preshrunk! If the fabric label says the material has been

MARJORIE HOLMES

Miss Holmes began to study the history of the Jewish people and to absorb the political and social flavor of the times. She made a trip to Israel, "confirming and enlarging on my own understanding."

"I could smell the odors and hear the sounds and see the sights that people saw then," she says with a note of awe. "It was a moving experience to be in Galilee because I had been so immersed in it. I felt quite at home."

Once the research was completed the writing came easily, says Miss Holmes, who writes five days a week from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 or 6 p.m. whether she's "inspired" or not.

"Once I get at the typewriter I get inspired," declares the bubbling blue-eyed blond. "I may start with no joy for my day's work but after several hours I'm so excited I can't stop."

The author, recipient of the 1972 Woman of Achievement award from the National Federation of Press Women, teaches writing classes at universities and workshops. She admits that writing takes talent but insists that possessors of such talent should respect it enough to practice every day.

"And there are great flashes of inspiration," she adds, "marvelous moments when you should leave the dinner party, leave the dishes, get up if it's the middle of the night—and write."

Miss Holmes has been practicing what she preaches since her first book was published 30 years ago and has two more volumes scheduled for publication in 1973. She not only writes a weekly newspaper column and a monthly magazine column, but travels extensively for lectures and radio and television shows.

In addition she loves dancing and walking and, as a native of Storm Lake, Iowa, where she was born "practically on the lake," she often swims three times a day. It's a grueling schedule that belies her fragile appearance. Where does she get all the energy?

"From God and vitamins," she laughs.

She and her husband, Lynn Mighell, live in McLean, Va., and have four grown children for whom they always tried to make Christmas a meaningful holiday.

"The gift-giving has been tragically overemphasized," Miss Holmes declares. "The desire to give things to each other is a good thing and of course it does have a valid beginning, going back to the gifts to the Christ child. But it has been exploited, and sometimes we lose sight of the basic event."

Chase away winter clutter and make a cool and summery bedroom setting with slipcovers, draperies and coverlet made of Burlington's sheets in a watery "Ebb Tide" design. White sheets are used for drapery linings, dust ruffle and dressing table stool, in contrast to blue, green tones of sheets.

shrink and is needle-ready, go a head and cut. If it doesn't say, play safe and soak it in cool water. Then let it run through the dryer, or hang it over the shower rod.

You won't need to preshrink all-polyester or all-nylon or all-Dacron fabrics. And though most blends are pretty stable, it's safer to preshrink the cotton Dacron combinations.

And don't forget about the zipper tape, the rickrack or seam binding, the trims and contrasting fabrics. If you expect to wash the garment after it's made, do take the time to preshrink everything that goes into it, so it will hold its fit and finish through many washings!

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY

New friendships with interesting, unusual people mark this coming year. Though they may frequently visit, the relationship will involve business, too.

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 19): Others look favorably upon your new ventures. Offers of aid, advice and contacts should come easily.

TAURUS (Apr 20-May 20): Everything will go more smoothly today if you try fresh approaches. Innovate—it will save time, money.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your problems have more than substance. You can handle things in stride, despite appearances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Changes mesh smoother than they looked previously. What is occurring benefits you and your loved ones.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): Diverse opinions could cause you frustration. Lengthy discussions may be required to resolve issues.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): You won't get out of the rut with routine methods. Update procedures to benefit your career.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 23): Make it a point to share today with others. You're good company. Your presence will be warmly received.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22): There's something new for the home you've been longing for. If you can afford it, today's a good day to buy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec 21): A short trip, even for business, should prove delightful. It will be better if friends are along.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19): Through the assistance of friends something's in the mill that looks like it will be good for both purse and prestige.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 19): Events should favor you today. A long-range gamble you've been toying with makes more sense.

PISCES (Feb 20-Mar 20): Confidential advice of someone you trust could brighten your prospects. His ideas are problem-solvers.

Opening lead—		6

By Oswald & James Jacoby
South might have doubled the four-spade opening and taken a small but welcome profit, but South was not going to be shut out of his fine heart suit.

He bid five hearts, but wished he hadn't when he saw the dummy.

East won the spade lead and continued the suit. Strangely enough, a club or diamond shift would kill any chance to make the contract, but no one can fault the spade continuation.

South ruffed; drew trumps with two leads; stopped to ask himself the $64,000 question: How can I make this hand?

hand so South played the ace of clubs and all that showed up were low cards.

This left him with two chances: "Slim and none."

The slim chance involved the risk of a two-trick set but South was willing to take it. He led a diamond toward dummy and finessed the jack. When that held the slim chance had become a pretty good one.

He ruffed dummy's next to last spade; got back to dummy with the king of diamonds. Ruffed the last spade; cashed the ace of diamonds and led a low club.

East was in with the king and had to lead a spade, allowing South to discard his last club and ruff in dummy.

A—Bid three hearts. Your partner has at least five clubs plus four hearts. You have excellent heart support.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of rebidding one heart your partner has gone to one spade after your diamond bid. What do you do now?

Class AA playoffs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three was the magic number in the Class AA football playoffs Friday night, but, in this context, three would almost always be a magic number. We're speaking of three touchdowns.

Newport got three touchdowns from Joe Smith to beat Wynne 21-15.

Harrison got three touchdowns from Jackie Mathis to beat Mena 27-6.

Magnolia not only got three touchdowns from Garnet Smith, but also two from Johnny Hayes to bomb Hamburg 41-14.

Of Friday night's playoff winners in Class AA, only Sheridan did not follow the three-touchdown pattern. The Yellowjackets beat defending champion Morrilton 10-7 with a 92-yard touchdown run by Bobby Bradford, who also scored a two-point conversion on a pass from quarterback Mike Alexander on a fake kick.

The results set up this schedule for the next round: Harrison plays Newport, Magnolia plays Sheridan. The sites will be determined by mutual agreement between the teams.

Sheridan also picked up a safety when Joe Waddle tackled the Morrilton ball carrier in the end zone.

Morrilton did not score until the fourth period when Donnie Parks went over for a touchdown.

Garnet Smith scored twice for Magnolia on runs of 11 yards and once on a five-yard run. Hayes got the first two Magnolia scores on runs of six and 22 yards. The other Panther TD came on an 87-yard pass play from Doug Rich to Ray Charles Williamson.

Jack McDonald scored both Hamburg touchdowns.

Joe Smith scored for Newport on runs of two, 45 and 63 yards, the last one coming with 3:47 left in the game to bring the Greyhounds from a 15-14 deficit. Wynne had beaten Newport 28-7 in the first game of the season.

Isaac Baldwin scored both Wynne touchdowns, on runs of one and two yards, and also made a two-point conversion.

Mathis got Harrison's first three touchdowns on runs of one, six and eight yards. Steve Lee got the last one on a seven-yard run. The Mena score came by way of an eight-yard run by Buster Bonner.

HAMBURG-MAGNOLIA

HAMBURG, Ark. (AP) — Garnet Smith scored three touchdowns and Johnny Hayes two as unbeaten Magnolia, the top-ranked team in Class AA, whipped Hamburg 41-14 here Friday night in the first round of the AA playoffs.

Smith twice scored from 11 yards out and raced five yards for another score, all in the second half.

Hayes scored Magnolia's first two touchdowns on runs of six and 22 yards. The Panthers broke the game open when Doug Rich hooked up with Ray Charles Williamson on an 87-yard scoring play on the final play of the first half. The touchdown gave Magnolia a 21-6 halftime lead.

Jack McDonald scored both Hamburg touchdowns.

Special races highlight racing season

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Sixteen special races will highlight the 50-day season at Oaklawn Park this season, including the 37th running of the Arkansas Derby at $100,000-added for the second time.

A purse distribution of about $3 million is expected for the meeting. Allan "Doc" Lavin, racing secretary and handicapper, said.

The derby, run at 1 1/4 miles, is set for the closing day, April 7. It is for 3-year-olds of either sex.

The schedule includes a new stakes race for 3-year-old fillies, the $50,000 Fantasy at one mile and 70 yards on April 6.

Hogs-Owls face gridiron test

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas and Rice, two teams that have been going downhill for the past few weeks, meet here today hoping to take a step in the other direction.

Rice opened the season with two victories and a tie and then lost four straight to LSU, SMU, Texas and Texas Tech.

"We've still got something to fight for," says Rice Coach Al Conover. "We can still come out a winner this season."

The Owls have four games remaining, including today's game.

Arkansas, the preseason favorite in the Southwest Conference, is 5-3 for the season after losing two of its last three games to Texas and Texas A&M. However, the Razorbacks are still in the running for a bowl bid. Officials from both the Peach Bowl and the Fiesta Bowl are scheduled to attend the Rice game.

Rice quarterback Bruce Gadd is the conference leader in the passing and total offense, one notch ahead of Arkansas quarterback Joe Ferguson.

Gadd completed 12 of 15 for 178 yards and two touchdowns against Arkansas last year as the two teams tied 24-24. The tie cost the Razorbacks a spot in the Cotton Bowl.

A crowd of more than 80,000 is expected for the 1 p.m. CDT kickoff.

Crimson Tide closing in on So. Cal?

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern California is a major target of some of the nation's top college football teams today ... even though the top-ranked Trojans have the weekend off.

Runner-up Alabama will be trying for an impressive victory over sixth-ranked Louisiana State at Birmingham that could enable the Crimson Tide to pick up some votes on Southern Cal.

Eighth-ranked UCLA, heading for a Pacific-8 showdown against the Trojans next Saturday, can tie Southern Cal for first place in the conference by winning at Washington.

Louisiana State, of course, has designs of its own on the No. 1 spot, as do defending champion—and third-ranked—Nebraska, which visits No. 17 Iowa State; No. 4 Michigan, which plays at Iowa; No. 5 Ohio State, which is at Michigan State; and No. 7 Oklahoma, which entertains No. 14 Missouri.

Not to be overlooked, of course, are ninth-ranked Texas, which visits Baylor, and No. 10 Penn State, at home against up-and-coming North Carolina State.

UCLA can lose to Washington and still go to the Rose Bowl by beating Southern Cal. That's just as well for the Bruins, because they haven't won in Seattle since 1958. Two years ago, Sonny Sitkiler & Co. poured it on 61-20.

Southern Cal's John McKay is far from unhappy with the week's vacation, even though the Trojans 14-game unbeaten string is the nation's longest.

"We won't break our streak this week," he says. "The buy should give us a chance to get all of our players who have been bumped up ready to play."

The top pairing of the day is LSU-Alabama ABC-TV, 4 p.m., EST, with LSU's Charlie McClendon going against Alabama's Bear Bryant—who coached McClendon at Kentucky more than 20 years ago. Both sides are unbeaten and it's an interesting match-up of Alabama's ground-oriented wishbone attack and the LSU air arm of Bert Jones.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 and No. 13 Tennessee are idle.

MAJOR HOOPLE'S FOOTBALL FORECAST

for games of Saturday, Nov. 11

SOMETHING'S GOT TO GIVE---

Unbeaten Alabama and LSU Battle For Southeastern Conference Lead

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Wizard of Odds

Egad, friends, with four weeks to go in the regular season there are only five major eleven with unblemished records—Southern California (9-0), Alabama (8-0), Michigan (8-0), LSU (7-0) and Ohio State (7-0). And something, dear readers, has got to give this week when two of the elite—Alabama and LSU—do battle for the Southeastern Conference lead—um-kumph!

Of the other three, Southern Cal has the week off to get ready for its Pacific 8 title match with UCLA on Nov. 18, while Michigan and Ohio State take on Big Ten foes.

In the big one at Birmingham, your favorite correspondent gives the edge to Bear Bryant's Alabama stalwarts over the come-from-behind miracle workers of old friend Charlie McClendon. We—hak-kaff—foresee the Tide rolling past LSU's Fighting Tigers, 27-22—har-rumph!

While the Trojans are resting, UCLA's Bruins will be sharpening their claws—heh-heh—with a 34-10 triumph over the outmanned Washington Huskies. And in the big Midwest matches, Ohio State's Buckeyes will make it eight straight by a narrow 21-20 count over Duffy Daugherty's rejuvenated Michigan State gladiators, and Michigan will record its ninth in a row by routing Iowa, 33-12!

In the Big Eight, Nebraska (7-1) and Oklahoma (6-1) will have little trouble with Iowa State and Missouri respectively. The Hoople System—kaff-kaff—picks 'em, Nebraska 47, Iowa State 10, and Oklahoma 34, Missouri 17.

In a contest that's sure to be a crowd pleaser, arch rivals Utah and Utah State will get together at Logan for their 71st gridiron meeting. Watch for a high-scoring fray as Utah repels the Aggies, 42-28!

The Hoople Three Star special of the week is the University of Tampa to shock intrastate rival Miami, 13-8, in the Orange Bowl. Earle Bruce's boys will be high for this one—har-rumph!

Now go on with the forecast.

For Calvin Murphy, Life Is Always Looking Up

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — "May I take your coat, Timmy?" asked Calvin Murphy.

Timmy, who is 11 years old and one of the few basketball players in the world shorter than Calvin Murphy, stiffly shrugged out of his coat at the door of Murphy's midtown hotel room.

Timmy had pulled strings with a sportswriter (who doubles as his father) to meet Murphy, the Houston Rockets' 5-9 guard. Now the meeting had come to pass and Timmy was somewhat scared. ("What will I talk to him about?" he asked often on the way over. Timmy was already learning the conflict between dreams and realities.)

"Hey, man, you're wearing Cons," exclaimed Murphy, as the three sat down. "Oh ye-ah. Cool."

Timmy proudly lifted his feet with the white sneakers and purple laces.

"You know, a lot of guys now, they're into Adidas or Pumas," said Murphy. "But I'll never change from Converse. They mean too much to me. When I was a kid in Norwalk, Conn., I was too poor to buy anything except those buck-ninety-five specials. You know the ones.

You run for two minutes and the bottoms start flappin' out.

"I didn't get my first pair of Cons until I was in the ninth grade. My coach said, 'Uh, Cal, let's go downtown and get you some decent sneakers.' We did, and it almost ruined my game. I stopped movin' for awhile. I mean, I became real dainty because I didn't want to bruise my Cons."

Laughter melted the ice.

"Yeah, and Cons got so big in the neighborhood," Murphy continued, "that we wore those black low-cuts for dress. You could be wearin' a suit and tie, but if you didn't have on those black Cons, you couldn't really strut."

The photograph inside Timmy's notebook had come warmly alive. Timmy is one of many boys who has latched on to Murphy as the symbol of hope for the small man. Murphy, the littlest player in the National Basketball Association by at least three inches, says he gets hundreds of letters during the season from boys asking how he did it.

Timmy—who one night before going to bed asked, for personal reasons, how the NBA draft works—now asked Murphy if he had ever wished he would grow when he was 11 years old.

"Sure," said Murphy, "and I thought I would since my whole family is big. I've got two brothers who are now 6-3 and 6-4. But by the time I reached the ninth grade I knew I wasn't going to grow. So I stopped worrying. I just tried to do the best I could with what I had."

Timmy asked about discrimination. "Never for color," said Murphy. "But my height, yes. I remember once I went to a schoolyard in Brooklyn and Connie Hawkins was king there and I asked to get in a game. He said, 'Later, kid.' I never got in the game. I kid Connie about that now."

"My friends, of all people, used to discourage me, like when I went to high school my friends said I was too small to make the basketball team. I tried out anyway. I made all-state my sophomore year."

"Same thing when I went to college. They said high school was small time, college was the big boys. I made All-America three straight years. So then people said that was college. The pros, those are the big boys. Well, this is my third year in the pros, and I'm still gettin' a lot of p.t.—playin' time."

Murphy said he did have troubles adjusting to the pros. He was so aggressive at first that he was even battling Wilt Chamberlain for rebounds ("pretty foolish, huh?") until he resolved to stay a little farther outside, play good defense, take a jump shot when he had one and mostly "pass the seed."

Murphy said that he does have a lot of natural ability, but was clumsy when young, played all day every day for years, developed his jumping ability by playing in heavy work boots.

He now believes that the small man has a greater chance of playing basketball than ever because he can fit easily into the modern fast-break game.

After almost an hour, it was time to go. Murphy helped Timmy on with his coat. At the door the sports-writer suggested that Timmy demonstrate his jump shot. Timmy was ready.

"Wow, a lefty, and look at that wrist snap on the follow-through," said Murphy. "To-o-o strong."

Timmy and the sports-writer walked to the elevator. Timmy was frowning. "I should have taken my coat off when I shot," he said. "Then I could have really soared."

grid quiz

by Dave Nelson, secretary-editor,
NCAA Football Rules Committee

On first down Amherst snaps the ball on its two-yard line against Trinity. The ball carrier receives the ball in his end zone and is downed with only the nose of the ball being in the field of play and rest of the ball on the goal line and in the end zone.

The official should:

1. Declare second down for Amherst on the 1-inch line.
2. Award Trinity a safety.
3. Declare a touchback for Amherst.

Answer: Number 2. Award Trinity a safety.

Rule: (8-5-1) It is a touchback if the attacking team is responsible for the ball's being on, above, or behind that goal line; if the defending team is responsible, it is a safety.

Cal Murphy
Hope for the little man.
